To All the Software Developers out there!!!

Time to try something new of its kind!

Elma is an mobile commerce platform that allows programmers to develop business application rapidly.

* Elma is an open platform and you are free to use it. Any income that you generate on your applications is all yours.

* With Elma, you can instantly activate financial transaction payment engine on your application without any worries on how to handle Financial Transactions.

* Since the platform manages different mobile devices, you as a programmer do not have to worry on portability of your application on different models of phones (example Symbian, Android, Windows, iPhone, Unbranded).

During the conference (2 hours), we would develop an end to end application
1. A standard data entry application to capture data in the field.
2. A payment application where you can purchase tickets of an event and get payments from Bank, Credit/Debit cards.
3. A content application where your application would provide data either from your website or from any RSS feed servers.
